TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1744

Yesterday arrived a Mail from Flanders.

Cadiz, January 21.

HE Day before Yesterday there arrived here an Advice Boat from the Havanna, which is said to have brought Papers of great Consequence; of the Contents of which, however, we can say nothing, because they were dispatched to Court by a Courier the Moment they were brought on Shore. We ually lading several Register Ships here, which be sent to the Havanna and Vera Cruz as soon as . A Ship has been sent in here, which was bound oors from Santa Cruz in Barbary, on a Suppositat she has English Effects on board.

ienna, January 28. The Court still continues at the where daily Conferences are held in relation to of State. It is believed, that our Negotiations weden and Denmark are mere Matters of Amuseand were calculated only to increase the Jealousy ain Powers, by giving them to understand, that y an East, but a West-India Company might be in the North. The Remittances lately made to Lyons, and Paris, are prodigious; and it is reazing how, after so long a War, and so total a tion of Commerce, the Nation is able to supply reat Sums. But if, after all, the Infant Don Philip n Establishment in any Corner of Italy, it is pro- the Court will be satisfied, even tho' that Estaent should be procured at the Expence of one of n Allies.

zick, February 2. Notwithstanding, that by a Desing from the Tribunal of the Crown, Count Palatine of Sendomir, ought to evacuate, by the the Estates of the late Prince James Sobieski, in of Prince Radzival, we do not apprehend that ill be either performed by the one, or that the will attempt to put this Decree in Execution by with the Assistance of Prince Czartorinski, as has iven out. We from hence conjecture, that the concerned in this Dispute have thought fit to o the Exhortations of the Primate, who very y persuades them to refer all their Differences to jesty, who is expected in Poland by the Middle Month of April.

ubfort, February 12. As the Protestants in Gercannot be persuaded to celebrate the Feast of Easter ame Day with the Catholicks, and as this must y occasion great Confusion in the Session of such of Justice as are composed of Members of both ons, his Imperial Majesty, in order to adjust the as far as possible, has thought fit to publish a Deon, by which the Vacation of the Imperial Cham- Wetzlar is to commence on the 26th of March, last to the 8th of April inclusive; by which Reon, neither Party gains or loses any Thing.

ue, February 18. The Day before Yesterday the of Holland resumed their Session, and consented Petition of the Council of State, for renewing ntinuing the Auxiliaries granted to the Queen of ry last Year, and for establishing a Body of 20,000 o form a Sort of Camp of Observation for the y of our Frontiers. The College of Admiralty amed the four following Ships to serve as a Con- the Ships bound up the Streights; viz. the n, the Westerdykes-Horn, the Dauphin, and the ; they have likewise thought fit to appoint the ng Captains to command them; viz. John Tael- Henry Lynslager, Roemer Vlack, and Francis de following Letter has been for some time handed here, both in French and Dutch; and is among umber of those Libels so loudly complained of French Minister here. It is said to be written Secretary of a great Prince, who is known not been amongst the Friends to the present War, o has long shewn an earnest Inclination to bring a Peace. But let it come from whom it will, re certainly abundance of Facts in it, equally eu- and important; especially at this critical Con- re, when every body seems to be so eager to be the Secret of Affairs.

of a Private Letter from a Person of Distinction at to a Friend of his at the Hague, on the present ation of Affairs, and, particularly, as to the Conduct rance.

s, January 27. 'You seem, Sir, very desirous of 'knowing what you ought to think of what is written 'from hence, in relation to our mighty Armaments on 'one hand, and, on the other, what is said of our Di'stress. I shall endeavour, as far as I am able, to give 'you right Notions of both, with that Freedom which 'is agreeable to our Friendship; and which is, indeed, 'the natural Language of one who speaks nothing but 'the Truth.

'It is very certain, that we are arming on all Sides, 'with as much Diligence as is possible, and at an Ex'pence which the Nation can but very ill afford. Yet 'it is no less true, that these Armaments have been 'much magnified abroad, especially in Holland; for 'tho' they are as great as we can make them, they are 'by no means so formidable as you seem to think them. 'We have been many Months, I may say, some Years, in 'drawing together, and equipping, the Fleet that is now 'ready to sail at Toulon. Our Dispositions on the 'Rhine, and on the Meuse, have the Air of being offen'sive; but if they contribute to the Covering our Fron'tiers as effectually next Campaign as they did last Year, 'it will, I dare say, be all that is expected from them.

'Our Difficulties as to raising Money are excessive, as 'you may imagine from the late Edict of Taxing Pro'visions. The Rich are already exhausted, and now we 'are obliged to lay such heavy Burdens on the Poor, you 'may conclude our Strength cannot last long. Our 'Enemies, if they act upon the Defensive, and so as to 'baffle our Attempts this Year, will effectually carry 'their Points without running any great Hazard, and 'without much Bloodshed. The Court is, at bottom, 'very desirous of Peace; and the main Design of our 'Military Preparations is, to obtain it upon easy and ho'nourable Terms. This you will the more readily com'prehend, if you consider the Condition we are in, and 'the Means by which we have been brought into it; and 'by which it must grow daily worse and worse, if a 'Peace be not obtained.

'The great Source of our Calamities has been grasp'ing at all, and this too all at once; as if the Wealth 'and Power of France had been equal to the Purchasing, 'or Subduing, the rest of Europe. In the North we 'wasted, some Years ago, an immense Treasure, to 'bring about a War, which, in its Issue, has for ever 'defeated the very Designs, to facilitate which we were 'at all that Expence to bring it about; yet we are still 'pursuing the same lost Game, and lavishing away pro'digious Sums, to support the chimerical Negociations 'of the Marquis de la Chetardie, stiled, by some of our 'Wits, the Belleisle of the North.

'What Blood and Treasure has France expended in 'the Cause of the Emperor, and what Support or Assist'ance are we to expect from thence? They tell us, 'indeed, of a Neutral Army of 80,000 Men, which will 'be assembled in the Bishoprick of Cologne in the Spring, 'of which the Imperial Troops in our Pay will make 'about one Half. But what is this Army to do? Why, 'in the first Place, it is to keep us out of the Empire. 'But will it keep the Queen of Hungary's Croats and 'Pandours out of Alsace? if not, What does it for us? 'Yet we are to pay for this Army of Observation; 'which it is not impossible may, in the End, be turn'd 'against us; since when the Emperor has nothing more 'to expect from France, we can have no Security that 'he will not join with more powerful Allies.

'As to the Spanish Army in Savoy, it is in such a 'Condition, that we must be forced to send a Body of 'Troops to keep Possession of Savoy, while the wretched 'Remains of that Army attempts to force a Passage 'into Italy thro' the County of Nice, where, no doubt, 'they will meet with all the Opposition that his Sardi'nian Majesty can give them; and what this will ef'fect, we may guess from what is past. Our Hopes, 'therefore, must center at last in our Fleets, which we 'may justly stile the last Efforts of France; since, what'ever happens, we shall find it impossible to fit out ten 'Ships more, that are in a Condition to act at present. 'Let us then see what we are to expect from them.

'We are morally certain, that what we have been 'told of the Weakness and Distress of Admiral Mathews, 'are all Fictions and Forgeries: His Ships are in good 'Condition; he has received his Reinforcements, and, 'beyond all Question, our Toulon Squadron would be 'glad to avoid him, if they could. Add to this, that it 'is highly probable, the British Fleet in the Channel will 'blast all our other Designs; and then, Sir, you will have 'a perfect View of our Situation at Land and Sea. I 'need not tell you, that we have a divided Ministry at 'home, and that Tencin, Chauvelin, and Chavigny, have 'all different Views, and are for acting upon different 'Schemes. A Month or two's Time will convince you, 'that I am at least as good a Politician as any of them, 'and that I have given you a pretty good Account of 'their Mistakes; tho' I don't pretend to have a Head 'able to mend them. I heartily wish any such Head 'may be found. In the mean time, be assured, that I 'am a hearty Wellwisher to Peace, and most sincerely,

'Your Friend, &c.'
